HR Support when and how you need it

Many business owners and operators are aware they need human resource systems in place to manage recruitment, induction, staff development and performance management, However the lack of time and expertise to implement is often not available as you are busy running your business.

It is not until something goes wrong that we realise how valuable these systems would have been in preventing this.

TCCI have identified the need to support business to navigate workplace relations and human resources requirements, by providing access to ongoing HR and WR support and advice, customised to your business objectives and budget requirements. When and how you need it!

Come along to this session where Stacey Joseph, TCCI's HR Business partner will be discussing how this highly customised service can be of benefit to your business.

You never know when you might need it!
